External affairs complete with hard yakka

'If you can imagine it, we can create it,' is the motto of this company, writes JANE EVANS

HAVING come from a sales and marketing background, Sam Keats wasn't all that familiar with getting his hands dirty.

But he was familiar with project management which led the Cottesloe resident to start up his own landscape architecture and construction company, Living Environs.

Formerly from Adelaide, Sam moved to Perth four years ago and was called on by friends to help them when a few things went wrong with the installation of their pool and outdoor area.

Sam said working with different contractors can be problematic which is why Living Environs offers a unique "concept to completion" service to clients wanting to revamp or create a back yard.

"This means we can organise everything from the concept and design to getting plans through council and subcontracting all of the work," he said.

"You can engage us to manage your entire project, or we can focus on specific aspects."

Living Environs works with home builders, residential and renovation clients and is starting to work on small to medium commercial projects.

Some of their work has included the design and construction of swimming pools and spas, outdoor rooms, pavilions and porticos, outdoor kitchens and bars, tennis courts, water and fire features, outdoor lighting and furniture and much more.

Sam says that each job is unique and the company's motto is that, chances are if you can imagine it, they can create it.

Living Environs was established in 2009 and quickly established itself at the forefront of outdoor development.

Their website went live just over a month ago and bookings for a free consultation can now be made online.
